Precedential Effect of Unpublished Opinions

Jason B. Binimow, J.D.

The rules and holdings of many state and federal courts provide that unpublished opinions cannot be considered to have precedential effect. The court in Hart v. Massanari, 266 F.3d 1155, Unempl. Ins. Rep. (CCH) ¶16685B, 105 A.L.R.5th 747 (9th Cir. 2001), held that Ninth Circuit Rule 36-3, providing that unpublished dispositions and orders of the Ninth Circuit are not binding precedent, is constitutional, and disagreed with the holding of Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh'g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000). This annotation collects and analyzes the cases in which the courts have discussed the precedential effect of unpublished opinions.

This annotation collects and discusses the federal and state cases adjudicating the precedential effect of unpublished opinions in subsequent cases concerning different parties and facts.

The issue of whether an unpublished opinion can be cited is not within the scope of this annotation.

A number of jurisdictions may have rules, regulations, constitutional provisions, or legislative enactments directly bearing upon this subject. These provisions are discussed herein only to the extent and in the form that they are reflected in the court opinions that fall within the scope of this annotation. The reader is consequently advised to consult the appropriate statutory or regulatory compilations to ascertain the current status of all statutes discussed herein, including those listed in the Jurisdictional Table of Cases and Statutes.

§ 1[a] Introduction—Scope

The nationwide proliferation of “unpublished” opinions—which are, in fact, promptly published in West’s national reporters and other legal publications—is both confusing and troubling. Indeed, in September 2001 West Group launched its Federal Appendix, a new case-reporter series in West’s National Reporter System that consists entirely of “unpublished” opinions from the federal circuit courts of appeals (except, currently, the Fifth and Eleventh Circuits). Generally, unpublished decisions or opinions have no precedential value other than the persuasiveness of their reasoning, as an opinion that is not published is written primarily for the parties who are already knowledgeable of the facts of the particular case, and for this reason, most unpublished decisions do not contain a comprehensive analysis of the legal issues decided by the court.

It thus is generally held that unpublished decisions have no binding precedential value, but a recent opinion of a panel of the Eighth Circuit, Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86

(CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), on remand to, 2002-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50168, 89 A.F.T.R.2d 448, 2001 WL 1750760 (E.D. Mo. 2001), may indicate a reversal of this trend, as there is now a constitutional ground that unpublished opinions do have binding precedential value (§). Also, effective January 1, 2002, the District of Columbia Circuit abandoned its no–citation rule and declared that all unpublished opinions issued on or after that date “may be cited as precedent.” Thus, while challenges to court rules denying precedential status to unpublished opinions have been both successful and unsuccessful, the courts may ultimately decide the issue without third party litigation.

Cases:

District court can rely on an unpublished opinion to the extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in the case before it. Chavez v. County of Bernalillo, 3 F. Supp. 3d 936 (D.N.M. 2014).

§ 2[b] Summary and comment— Practice pointers

Cases:

Unpublished opinions of the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals are not considered binding precedent, but they may be cited as persuasive authority. In re Alonso, 495 B.R. 53 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 2013).

Under the court rule precluding citation of a nonpublished decision except as “relevant under the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, or collateral estoppel,” limited citation to a nonpublished decision was permissible as necessary to explain the published rulings in an opinion on a subsequent appeal in the same case, where the published opinion expressly relied on the statement of facts and legal reasoning of the nonpublished decision without reiterating either. Cal. Rules of Court, rule 8.1115(a), (b)(1). Millview County Water District v. State Water Resources Control Board, 2014 WL 4467819 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2014).
§ 2.5. Rule holding no precedential effect

[Cumulative Supplement]

Attorneys must ascertain with precision whether or not a particular jurisdiction, by statute or court rule, accords any precedential value to unpublished decisions, as suggested by the following Virginia case.

Cases:

Unpublished cases from the Court of Appeals of Minnesota are not precedential but may be persuasive. M.S.A. § 480A.08(3)(c). Burns v. Bank of America, 655 F. Supp. 2d 240 (S.D. N.Y. 2008), aff’d, 2010 WL 106715 (2d Cir. 2010).

Unpublished opinions of Delaware courts may be cited in Delaware, although not as binding precedent. VICI Racing, LLC v. T-Mobile USA, Inc., 763 F.3d 273 (3d Cir. 2014).

A federal district court has discretion to consider the rationale of an unpublished decision of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania when doing so assists the court’s task in correctly ascertaining and applying the law of Pennsylvania. Tristani v. Richman, 609 F. Supp. 2d 423 (W.D. Pa. 2009).

Court of Appeals’ unpublished decisions are not binding upon it. Minor v. Bostwick Laboratories, Inc., 669 F.3d 428, 18 Wage & Hour Cas. 2d (BNA) 1248, 161 Lab. Cas. (CCH) P 35987 (4th Cir. 2012).

Unpublished decisions of the Court of Appeals are ordinarily not accorded precedential value; rather, such opinions are entitled only to the weight they generate by the persuasiveness of their reasoning. Minor v. Bostwick Laboratories, Inc., 654 F. Supp. 2d 433 (E.D. Va. 2009).

Unpublished opinions, although not precedential, may be considered persuasive authority. U.S. v. Torres-Jaime, 821 F.3d 577 (5th Cir. 2016).

An unpublished opinion, though not controlling precedent, may be considered as persuasive authority. U.S. v. Weatherton, 567 F.3d 149 (5th Cir. 2009).

Neither dicta in a court of appeals opinion nor an unpublished decision by the court of appeals is binding precedent. Scarber v. Palmer, 808 F.3d 1093 (6th Cir. 2015).
An unpublished opinion of a court of appeals does not constitute binding precedent. Gunner v. Welch, 749 F.3d 511 (6th Cir. 2014).

Although unpublished decisions of the court of appeals are not binding precedent on subsequent panels, their reasoning may be instructive or helpful, especially where there are no published decisions which will serve as well. U.S. v. Stafford, 721 F.3d 380 (6th Cir. 2013).

Unpublished decisions in the Sixth Circuit are not binding precedent on subsequent panels, but their reasoning may be instructive or helpful. Crump v. Lafler, 657 F.3d 393 (6th Cir. 2011).

Although unpublished decisions do not have precedential authority, they may be considered for their persuasive value in analysis of the concept of reasonable suspicion, which does not permit of precise judicial definition and is dependent on circumstances. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 4. U.S. v. Keith, 559 F.3d 499 (6th Cir. 2009).

Unpublished decisions of the Sixth Circuit are not binding under the doctrine of stare decisis and are to be considered for their persuasive value only. King v. Household Finance Corp. II, 593 F. Supp. 2d 958 (E.D. Ky. 2009).

Michigan Court of Appeals panels are not bound by unpublished decisions of that same court, regardless of when they were issued. MCR 7.215(J)(1). Lakeland Regional Health System v. Walgreens Health Initiatives, Inc., 604 F. Supp. 2d 983 (W.D. Mich. 2009).

Michigan Court of Appeals panels are not bound by unpublished decisions of that same court, regardless of when they were issued; nonetheless, federal court may consider and follow unpublished state-court decisions, so long as they do not contradict published decisions of the Michigan Supreme Court or Michigan Court of Appeals. MCR 7.215(J)(1). Ellis v. Kaye-Kibbey, 581 F. Supp. 2d 861 (W.D. Mich. 2008).

Court of Appeals’ unpublished opinions are not precedentially binding under doctrine of stare decisis, but may be considered for their persuasive value. Bailey v. City of Broadview Heights, Ohio, 721 F. Supp. 2d 653 (N.D. Ohio 2010).

Unpublished opinions are not controlling precedent. U.S. v. Jordan, 812 F.3d 1183 (8th Cir. 2016).

Unpublished opinions are not binding precedent, but they are relevant insofar as they have persuasive value. White v. National Football League, 756 F.3d 585, 199 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 3802, 2014-1 Trade Cas. (CCH) ¶ 78820 (8th Cir. 2014).

An unpublished decision is not precedent for a panel of the Court of Appeals. Pedroza v. BRB, 583 F.3d 1139 (9th Cir. 2009).

Although federal district court is not bound by unpublished decisions of intermediate state courts with respect to state-law issues, unpublished opinions that are supported by reasoned analysis may be treated as persuasive authority. CarMax Auto Superstores California LLC v. Hernandez, 94 F. Supp. 3d 1078 (C.D. Cal. 2015).

Although federal court determining state law matter is not bound by unpublished decisions of intermediate state courts, unpublished opinions that are supported by reasoned analysis may be treated as persuasive authority. U.S. v. Boyce, 38 F. Supp. 3d 1135, 114 A.F.T.R.2d 2014-5552 (C.D. Cal. 2014), appeal dismissed, (9th Cir. 14-56610)(Nov. 13, 2014).

Federal court may consider unpublished state decisions, even though such opinions have no precedential value. Hardin v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 813 F. Supp. 2d 1167 (E.D. Cal. 2011).

Unpublished Court of Appeals panel opinion could not have overruled or declared invalid precedential opinion of prior panel. In re Apple iPhone Antitrust Litigation, 874 F. Supp. 2d 889, 82 Fed. R. Serv. 3d 1226 (N.D. Cal. 2012).
Pursuant to Ninth Circuit rule, defendant was precluded from citing to an unpublished decision in his opposition to plaintiff’s motion for summary judgment, since none of the rule’s exceptions for citing unpublished dispositions applied to case. U.S.Ct. of App. 9th Cir. Rule 36-3, 28 U.S.C.A. Roth v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America, 752 F. Supp. 2d 1160 (D. Or. 2010).

Although unpublished orders and opinions generally are not considered binding precedent, except under doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, and collateral estoppel, such order or opinion may be relied on for purpose of disposing of issue presented if it has persuasive value with respect to material issue in case and would assist court in its disposition. U.S. v. Engles, 779 F.3d 1161 (10th Cir. 2015).

Although unpublished orders and judgments do not establish binding precedent in the Tenth Circuit, they may occasionally be referenced for illustrative purposes. Murphy v. Deloitte & Touche Group Ins. Plan, 619 F.3d 1151, 49 Employee Benefits Cas. (BNA) 2345 (10th Cir. 2010).

Unpublished orders are not binding precedent and citation to unpublished opinions is not favored; however, if an unpublished opinion or order and judgment has persuasive value with respect to a material issue in a case and would assist the court in its disposition, a citation to that decision is allowed. Los Reyes Firewood v. Martinez, 121 F. Supp. 3d 1186 (D.N.M. 2015).

Unpublished orders are not binding precedent and citation to unpublished opinions is not favored; however, if an unpublished opinion has persuasive value with respect to a material issue in a case and would assist the court in its disposition, citation to that decision is allowed. U.S. v. Courtney, 960 F. Supp. 2d 1152 (D.N.M. 2013).

Unpublished decisions of Court of Appeals are not binding authority, and they are persuasive only to the extent that a subsequent panel finds the rationale expressed in that opinion to be persuasive after an independent consideration of the legal issue. Collado v. J. & G. Transport, Inc., 820 F.3d 1256 (11th Cir. 2016).

Unpublished opinions are not binding precedent. U.S. v. Izurieta, 710 F.3d 1176 (11th Cir. 2013).

Unpublished opinions are not controlling authority and are persuasive only insofar as their legal analysis warrants. Ray v. Sun Life & Health Ins. Co., 752 F. Supp. 2d 1229 (N.D. Ala. 2010).

Unpublished opinions are not controlling authority and are persuasive only insofar as their legal analysis warrants. Mixon v. Nationstar Mortg., LLC, 62 F. Supp. 3d 1321 (S.D. Ala. 2014).

Unpublished opinions are not binding, but they may be considered persuasive authority. Hinson v. Titan Insurance Company, 127 F. Supp. 3d 1249 (N.D. Fla. 2015).

While unpublished opinions are not considered binding precedent, they may be considered as persuasive authority. E.E.O.C. v. West Customer Management Group, LLC, 899 F. Supp. 2d 1241, 116 Fair Empl. Pract. Cas. (BNA) 332 (N.D. Fla. 2012).

Although the District of Columbia Circuit does not have a local rule directly on point, unpublished dispositions should not strictly bind panels of the court of appeals and do not constrain a panel of the court from reaching a contrary conclusion in a published opinion after full consideration of the issue. U.S. v. Epps, 707 F.3d 337 (D.C. Cir. 2013).

Unpublished orders may be considered persuasive authority, but they do not constrain a panel of the court from reaching a contrary conclusion in a published opinion after full consideration of the issue. In re Grant, 635 F.3d 1227 (D.C. Cir. 2011).

Unpublished opinions are not controlling in the Sixth Circuit. Thorpe v. Breathitt County Bd. of Educ., 8 F. Supp. 3d 932

A motion to strike is a proper vehicle for attacking citation to unpublished authority. Calpine Const. Finance Co. v. Arizona Dept. of Revenue, 221 Ariz. 204, 211 P.3d 1228 (Ct. App. Div. 1 2009).

It is improper to cite or rely upon unpublished opinions except in limited circumstances. Cal. R. Ct. 8.1115(a, b). People v. Gray, 2014 WL 4251381 (Cal. App. 5th Dist. 2014).

While unpublished federal District Court opinions are citable, they do not constitute binding authority. Gong v. City of Rosemead, 2014 WL 2094271 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 2014).

Prior unpublished Court of Appeal opinion which vacated disabilities imposed upon a Lanterman–Petrís–Short (LPS) Act conservatee was citable to explain the factual background of the present case and not as legal authority, in other conservatees’ appeal from the denial of their petition for declaratory and writ relief challenging county public guardian’s alleged practice of obtaining court orders that deprived conservatees of the right to consent to or refuse treatment in nonemergency situations without a judicial determination of incapacity. West’s Ann.Cal.Welf. & Inst.Code § 5357; Cal.Rules of Court, Rule 8.1115(a). K.G. v. Meredith, 2012 WL 745621 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2012).

Although not binding precedent on the Court of Appeal, the Court may consider relevant, unpublished federal district court opinions as persuasive. Futrell v. Payday California, Inc., 190 Cal. App. 4th 1420, 2010 WL 5117629 (2d Dist. 2010).

Although the Court of Appeal may not rely on unpublished state court cases, the rules of court do not prohibit citation to unpublished federal cases, which may properly be cited as persuasive, although not binding, authority. Cal.Rules of Court,

Although unpublished federal cases may be cited as persuasive, they are not precedent. DeJung v. Superior Court, 169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99, 105 Fair Empl. Pract. Cas. (BNA) 23 (1st Dist. 2008).

Although the Court of Appeals’ published policy forbids the citation of unpublished cases, parties may cite cases decided between January 1, 1970 and November 1, 1975 that appear in the Pacific Second Reporter; however, trial courts are not required to follow those cases as precedent. Woods v. Delgar Ltd., 226 P.3d 1178 (Colo. App. 2009), cert. denied, 2010 WL 893820 (Colo. 2010).

Unpublished dispositions have no precedential value. Gawker Media, LLC v. Bollea, 170 So. 3d 125 (Fla. 2d DCA 2015).

Under procedural principles of Florida law, a per curiam affirmance with no written opinion has no precedential value and does not constitute an adjudication on the merits. Shelton v. Secretary, Dept. of Corrections, 802 F. Supp. 2d 1289 (M.D. Fla. 2011) (applying Florida law).

Unreported federal court decisions do not have precedential value. Citizens Property Ins. Corp. v. Ashe, 50 So. 3d 645 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1st Dist. 2010).

Unpublished federal decision is not binding or precedential in state courts, but state courts may follow the same reasoning if they find it persuasive. Morris v. Union Pacific R. Co., 396 Ill. Dec. 330, 39 N.E.3d 1156 (App. Ct. 5th Dist. 2015).

Unreported decisions have no precedential value, and this is even more true for decisions from foreign jurisdictions. Burnette v. Stroger, 329 Ill. Dec. 101, 905 N.E.2d 939 (App. Ct. 1st Dist. 2009).

Unpublished federal decisions are not binding or precedential in Illinois courts; however, nothing prevents Appellate Court from using the same reasoning and logic as that used in an unpublished federal decision, should it so choose. CitiMortgage, Inc. v. Parille, 2016 IL App (2d) 150286, 49 N.E.3d 869 (Ill. App. Ct. 2d Dist. 2016).

Unreported decisions have no precedential value, and this is even more true for decisions from foreign jurisdictions. American Family Mut. Ins. Co. v. Plunkett, 2014 IL App (1st) 131631, 14 N.E.3d 676 (Ill. App. Ct. 1st Dist. 2014).

Unpublished federal decisions are not binding or precedential in Illinois courts; however, nothing prevents the appellate court from using the same reasoning and logic as that used in an unpublished federal decision where it finds it to be persuasive. Solargenix Energy, LLC v. Acciona, S.A., 2014 IL App (1st) 123403, 17 N.E.3d 171 (Ill. App. Ct. 1st Dist. 2014).

Unpublished order in a federal district court case interpreting state law was not precedential and should not have been cited in

It is the policy of the Court of Special Appeals in its opinions not to cite for persuasive value any unreported federal or state court opinion. Wagner v. State, 102 A.3d 900 (Md. Ct. Spec. App. 2014).

Although Michigan Court of Appeals panels are not bound by unpublished decisions of that same court, regardless of when they were issued, the federal court may consider unpublished state-court decisions, so long as they do not contradict published decisions of the Michigan Supreme Court or Michigan Court of Appeals. MCR 7.215(J)(1). Griffin v. Reznick, 609 F. Supp. 2d 695 (W.D. Mich. 2008) (applying Michigan law).

Although, under Michigan law, an unpublished opinion is not precedentially binding under the rule of stare decisis, such an opinion can be cited as persuasive authority. MCR 7.215(C)(1). In re Johnson, 439 B.R. 416 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2010) (applying Michigan law).

Although unpublished opinions of Court of Appeals are not binding precedent, they may be considered instructive or persuasive. MCR 7.215(C)(1). Adam v. Bell, 311 Mich. App. 528, 879 N.W.2d 879 (2015).

Although unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals are not binding precedent, they may be considered instructive or persuasive. Richards v. Richards, 310 Mich. App. 683, 874 N.W.2d 704 (2015).

Although unpublished opinions are not binding on the Court of Appeals, the Court may consider them for their persuasive value. Lech v. Huntmore Estates Condominium Ass’n, 310 Mich. App. 258, 2015 WL 1737651 (2015).

Although unpublished opinions of Court of Appeals are not binding precedent, they may be considered instructive or persuasive. In re S. Kanjia, 308 Mich. App. 660, 866 N.W.2d 862 (2014).

Although an unpublished opinion has no precedential value, the Court of Appeals may follow the opinion if it finds the reasoning persuasive. MCR 7.215(C)(1). People v. Minch, 295 Mich. App. 92, 2011 WL 6375594 (2011).

Although unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals are not binding precedent, they may be considered instructive or persuasive. MCR 7.215(C)(1). People v. City of Kentwood, 287 Mich. App. 136, 783 N.W.2d 133 (2010).

Under Minnesota law, while unpublished decisions are not precedential, they can be of persuasive value. M.S.A. § 480A.08. Grinnell Mut. Reinsurance Co. v. Schwieger, 685 F.3d 697 (8th Cir. 2012) (applying Minnesota law).

Unpublished cases are not binding authority, although they may have persuasive value. M.S.A. § 480A.08. City of Saint Paul v. Eldredge, 788 N.W.2d 522 (Minn. Ct. App. 2010).

Although unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals are not precedential, the Court may consider them for their persuasive value. State v. Ferguson, 786 N.W.2d 640 (Minn. Ct. App. 2010).

Unpublished orders and opinions from the Supreme Court are not to be cited as precedent. State v. Ferre, 2014 MT 96, 322 P.3d 1047 (Mont. 2014).

Unpublished opinions do not constitute precedent and are not to be cited by any court. Committee to Recall Robert Menendez From the Office of U.S. Senator v. Wells, 204 N.J. 79, 7 A.3d 720 (2010).

Citation to unpublished authority is expressly disfavored by the appellate rules but permitted if a party, in pertinent part, believes there is no published opinion that would serve as well as the unpublished opinion. Inland Harbor Homeowners Ass’n, Inc. v. St. Josephs Marina, LLC, 2012 WL 696227 (N.C. Ct. App. 2012).

Once an appellate court has ruled on a question, that decision becomes the “law of the case” and governs the question both in subsequent proceedings in a trial court and on subsequent appeal; even unpublished opinions, which are normally without precedential value, or an erroneous decision by the Court of Appeals, becomes the law of the case for that case only. Sullivan v. Pender County, 676 S.E.2d 69 (N.C. Ct. App. 2009).

An unpublished Superior Court memorandum decision shall not be relied upon or cited by a Court or a party in any other action or proceeding, except that such a memorandum decision may be relied upon or cited (1) when it is relevant under the doctrine of law of the case, res judicata, or collateral estoppel, and (2) when the memorandum is relevant to a criminal action or proceeding because it recites issues raised and reasons for a decision affecting the same defendant in a prior action or proceeding. Coleman v. Wyeth Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 2010 PA Super 158, 6 A.3d 502, Prod. Liab. Rep. (CCH) P 18492 (2010).

Although unpublished cases have no precedential value, the Court of Appeals may take guidance from them as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Douglas v. State, 489 S.W.3d 613 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2016).

Although unpublished cases have no precedential value, courts may take guidance from them as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Juarez v. State, 461 S.W.3d 283 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2015).

Although an unpublished case has no precedential value, Court of Appeals may take guidance from it as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Barrios v. State, 389 S.W.3d 382 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2012).

Although unpublished cases have no precedential value, an appellate court may take guidance from them as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Marsh v. State, 343 S.W.3d 475 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2011).

Unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals, while having no precedential value, are nevertheless persuasive authority. Samartino v. Fairfax County Fire and Rescue, 64 Va. App. 499, 769 S.E.2d 692 (2015).

Although an unpublished opinion of the Court of Appeals has no precedential value, a court does not err by considering the rationale and adopting it to the extent it is persuasive. Stokes v. Com., 61 Va. App. 388, 736 S.E.2d 330 (2013).

Unpublished per curiam opinions of the Court of Appeals may not be cited as precedent or authority in any court of the state, except to support claims of issue preclusion, claim preclusion, or law of the case. W.S.A. 809.23(3)(a, b). State v. Obriecht, 2014 WI App 42, 353 Wis. 2d 542, 846 N.W.2d 479 (Ct. App. 2014).

Statute that limits use of unpublished opinions does not prohibit Supreme Court’s discussion of unpublished decisions when such discussion relies on the opinion solely to demonstrate that courts have used particular language from other cases, and does not rely on the decision for authoritative or persuasive value. W.S.A. 809.23(3). Showers Appraisals, LLC v. Musson Bros., 2013 WI 79, 835 N.W.2d 226 (Wis. 2013).

Statute providing that an unpublished opinion may not be cited in any Wisconsin court as precedent or authority except to support certain claims does not prohibit the Court of Appeals from citing unpublished opinions from other jurisdictions. W.S.A. 809.23(3). State v. Swope, 2008 WI App 175, 762 N.W.2d 725 (Wis. Ct. App. 2008).

US
U.S. v. Don B. Hart Equity Pure Trust, 818 F.2d 1246 (5th Cir. 1987) (unpublished opinions issued before January 1, 1996, are binding precedent in the Fifth Circuit under 5th Cir. R. 47.5.3)
U.S. v. Andrews, 918 F.2d 1156 (5th Cir. 1990) (overruled on other grounds by, U.S. v. Bachynsky, 934 F.2d 1349 (5th Cir. 1991)) (unpublished opinions issued before January 1, 1996, are binding precedent in the Fifth Circuit under 5th Cir. R.
Macktal v. U.S. Dept. of Labor, 171 F.3d 323, 14 I.E.R. Cas. (BNA) 1825 (5th Cir. 1999) (unpublished opinions issued before January 1, 1996, are binding precedent in the Fifth Circuit under 5th Cir. R. 47.5.3)

U.S. v. Goldman, 228 F.3d 942 (8th Cir. 2000)

Harris v. U.S., 769 F.2d 718 (11th Cir. 1985) (unpublished opinions are binding precedent)

In re Arzt, 252 B.R. 138, 44 Collier Bankr. Cas. 2d (MB) 1552 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 2000)

People of Territory of Guam v. Yang, 800 F.2d 945 (9th Cir. 1986), reh’g granted, 833 F.2d 1379 (9th Cir. 1987) and on reh’g, 850 F.2d 507 (9th Cir. 1988) (applying Guam law) (court of appeals was required to defer to Guam court’s treatment of its unpublished decisions as authoritative)

The court in Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh’g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), held that unpublished opinions have precedential effect. The court held that the portion of Eighth Cir. R. 28A(i) that declares that unpublished opinions are not precedent is unconstitutional under Article III of the United States Constitution, because it purports to confer on the federal courts a power that goes beyond the “judicial.” The court, citing Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137, 2 L. Ed. 60 (1803), noted that inherent in every judicial decision is a declaration and interpretation of a general principle or rule of law. The court further noted that this declaration of law is authoritative to the extent necessary for the decision and must be applied in subsequent cases to similarly situated parties. The court, noting that these principles, which form the doctrine of precedent, were well established and well regarded at the time this nation was founded, and that the framers of the Constitution considered these principles to derive from the nature of judicial power and intended that they would limit the judicial power delegated to the courts by Article III of the Constitution, concluded that Eighth Circuit Rule 28A(i), insofar as it would allow the court to avoid the precedential effect of its prior decisions, purports to expand the judicial power beyond the bounds of Article III and is therefore unconstitutional. Since Rule 28A(i) expands the judicial power beyond the limits set by Article III by allowing the court complete discretion to determine which judicial decisions will bind and which will not, insofar as the rule limits the precedential effect of the court’s prior decisions the rule is unconstitutional.

On rehearing en banc, the Eighth Circuit in Anastasoff v. U.S., 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86
A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), held that the tax dispute on which there was conflicting precedent, and on which a rehearing en banc was sought, became moot when the government paid the taxpayer’s refund claim and announced its acquiescence in the rule of caselaw favoring the taxpayer’s position; the continuing dispute regarding the circuit court panel’s procedural determination was no longer relevant to the resolution of case and its determination would, in any case, be vacated due to the case’s mootness. The en banc court thus noted that the constitutionality of that portion of Rule 28A(i) which says that unpublished opinions have no precedential effect remains an open question in the Eighth Circuit.

Comment

The court in Encore Video, Inc. v. City of San Antonio, 2000 WL 33348240 (W.D. Tex. 2000), as dicta, respectfully requested, in light of Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh’g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2000-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), that the Fifth Circuit consider the validity of 5th Cir. R. 47.5.4, which provides that unpublished opinions issued on or after January 1, 1996, are not precedent, except under the doctrine of res judicata, collateral estoppel or law of the case (or similarly to show double jeopardy, abuse of the writ, notice, sanctionable conduct, entitlement to attorney’s fees, or the like). Given the similarities in the rules of the Fifth and Eighth Circuits, the district court noted the beginning of a possible trend and found the discussion of the issue worth consideration by the circuit.

The court in U.S. v. Goldman, 228 F.3d 942 (8th Cir. 2000), held that even an unpublished opinion of a panel of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals was binding precedent on another panel, which had to follow until the time, if ever, that the decision was overturned by the Eighth Circuit en banc.

The court in State ex rel. Anaya v. Jaramillo, 92 N.M. 617, 593 P.2d 58 (1979), held that, since there was no rule as to the precedential effect of unpublished opinions of the New Mexico Supreme Court in effect at the time the case, involving a transfer of a liquor license, was on appeal, the unpublished opinion of the New Mexico Supreme Court involving the same issue, which was legally correct and in which the court had set forth the ultimate facts, had precedential value.

See Winrock Inn Co. v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America, 122 N.M. 562, 1996 -NMCA- 113, 928 P.2d 947 (Ct. App. 1996), ¶4, in which the court, citing NMRA 1996, 12-405(c), held that unpublished decisions are not meant to be used as precedent, as they are written solely for the benefit of the parties.

Cases:

Delaware permits the citation of unpublished decisions as precedent. First Marblehead Corp. v. House, 473 F.3d 1, 25 I.E.R. Cas. (BNA) 823 (1st Cir. 2006).

The Court of Appeals does not prohibit citation to unpublished, nonprecedential opinions, but the Court regards them for what they are worth, the opinions of three members of the court in a particular case. In re Grand Jury Investigation, 445 F.3d 266 (3d Cir. 2006).

Unpublished case that was the only Fourth Circuit case specifically addressing applicable statute of limitations for Title IX

Citation of unpublished opinion was warranted where there was no published opinion on point. U.S.Ct. of App. 4th Cir.Rule 36(c), 28 U.S.C.A. Allen v. Greenville Hotel Partners, Inc., 409 F. Supp. 2d 672 (D.S.C. 2006).

Vacated opinions may be cited for precedential effect when they have been validated by the Court of Appeals. RLI Ins. Co. v. Conseco, Inc., 477 F. Supp. 2d 741 (E.D. Va. 2007).

The court in Weaver v. Ingalls Shipbuilding, Inc., 282 F.3d 357 (5th Cir. 2002), held that the fact a prior Fifth Circuit decision was unpublished did not alter its precedential status, where it was decided before January 1, 1996, based upon U.S. Ct. of App. 5th Cir. Rule 47.5.3, 28 U.S.C.A. The court noted that although Rule 47.5.3 is framed to limit citations to unpublished opinions ("normally … cited only when the doctrine of res judicata, collateral estoppel or law of the case is applicable"); it has been interpreted to render unpublished decisions before January 1, 1996, precedential. The court noted that of all the cases citing this rule, only one interprets the "normally" clause of the rule to limit citations of pre-January 1, 1996, unpublished opinions as precedent to the specifically enumerated exceptions to the rule, and all other references treat the rule as making unpublished decisions before the effective date precedential.

When the facts of an unpublished decision are similar to the case at hand and the reasoning is sound and persuasive, citation to and reliance on the unpublished opinion is appropriate. Lindstrom v. AC Products Liability Trust, 264 F. Supp. 2d 583 (N.D. Ohio 2003).

In absence of any rule, practice, or order to contrary, any district court opinion, published or unpublished, may be cited for persuasive purposes. Arakaki v. Cayetano, 299 F. Supp. 2d 1090 (D. Haw. 2002).

District court can rely on an unpublished opinion of the Court of Appeals to the extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in the case before it. U.S. v. Barela, 102 F. Supp. 3d 1212 (D.N.M. 2015).

The District Court can rely on an unpublished opinion to the extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in the case before it. S.E.C. v. Goldstone, 301 F.R.D. 593 (D.N.M. 2014).

District Court can rely on an unpublished opinion to extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in the case before it. U.S. v. Rodella, 59 F. Supp. 3d 1331 (D.N.M. 2014).

Under Delaware law, unpublished opinions of Delaware courts have precedential value. Scrushy v. Tucker, 70 So. 3d 289 (Ala. 2011).

Court of Appeal may consider the opinions of federal courts when construing federal statutes, and even unpublished federal opinions have persuasive value, as they are not subject to state court rule that bars citation of unpublished California opinions. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 977. Harris v. Investor’s Business Daily, Inc., 138 Cal. App. 4th 28, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108 (2d Dist. 2006).

Rule that unpublished opinion may not be cited or relied upon applies only to opinions originating in California; opinions from other jurisdictions can be cited without regard to their publication status. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 977. Lebrilla v. Farmers Group, Inc., 119 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 25 (4th Dist. 2004), as modified on other grounds on denial of reh’g, (July 19, 2004) and review filed, (Aug. 3, 2004).

When a party chooses to cite an unpublished opinion, the Court of Appeals may follow that decision if it finds the reasoning persuasive. Department of Environmental Quality v. Waterous Co., 279 Mich. App. 346, 760 N.W.2d 856 (2008), appeal denied, 759 N.W.2d 888 (Mich. 2009).

In resolving appeal of dispute between insureds and their workers’ compensation insurance carrier involving California law, New York appellate court would afford persuasive weight to unreported California appellate court decision that was directly on point, even though the California Rules of Court would not have allowed citation to the unpublished opinion; New York court was not bound by the California Rules of Court, the New York Rules of Court did not contain any prohibition against citing to unpublished opinions, New York state courts routinely cited unreported cases of other jurisdictions, and the courts of other jurisdictions had also considered unpublished California Court of Appeal cases. Cal.Rules of Court, Rule 8.1115; 22 NYCRR 600.10. Monarch Consulting, Inc. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, 993 N.Y.S.2d 275 (App. Div. 1st Dep’t 2014).

An unpublished opinion may be used as persuasive authority at the appellate level if the case is properly submitted and discussed and there is no published case on point. Zurosky v. Shaffer, 763 S.E.2d 755 (N.C. Ct. App. 2014).

Although it is generally inappropriate to cite unpublished cases as authority, discussion of unpublished case in opinion was necessary where defendant relied on case in his brief. Schultz v. State, 2006 UT App 105, 132 P.3d 701 (Utah Ct. App. 2006).

The appellate court may rely on unpublished opinions as evidence of the facts established in earlier proceedings in the same case or in a different case involving the same parties; it may also consider unpublished opinions in examining issues such as the law of the case, collateral estoppel, and res judicata. Martin v. Wilbert, 253 P.3d 108 (Wash. Ct. App. Div. 1 2011).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by permitting attorney representing defendant in civil action to submit six federal court decisions, four of which were not published, in support of motion for summary judgment; applicable rule of appellate procedure provided that parties could not cite as authority unpublished opinion of the Court of Appeals, and defendant’s attorney did not cite unpublished appellate court decisions as authority. Oltman v. Holland America Line USA, Inc., 148 P.3d 1050 (Wash. Ct. App. Div. 1 2006).

CUMULATIVE SUPPLEMENT

The following authority expressed the view that unpublished opinions may be cited as legal authority to the extent permitted by the rules of the rendering court.

Cases:
Federal court may rely on unpublished opinions of California Court of Appeal to “lend support” to contention that particular published case accurately represents California law, although they are not precedent under California Rule of Court. \textit{Beeman v. Anthem Prescription Management, LLC}, 689 F.3d 1002 (9th Cir. 2012).

District Court can rely on an unpublished opinion to extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in the case before the Court. \textit{U.S. v. Ornelas-Yanez}, 77 F. Supp. 3d 1083 (D.N.M. 2014).

Court can rely on unpublished opinion to extent its reasoned analysis is persuasive in case before it. \textit{Griffin v. Bryant}, 30 F. Supp. 3d 1139 (D.N.M. 2014).

Unpublished decisions of other courts may be cited as legal authority to the extent the rules of the rendering court allow. \textit{McDonald v. Department of Environmental Quality}, 2009 MT 209, 351 Mont. 243, 214 P.3d 749, 21 A.D. Cas. (BNA) 1848 (2009).

Unpublished decisions from other jurisdictions have value if they are persuasive. \textit{State v. Birchfield}, 2015 ND 6, 858 N.W.2d 302 (N.D. 2015).

Ed. 2d 495 (1987), in which the Supreme Court noted that the fact that the court of appeals order under challenge was unpublished carried no weight in its decision to review the case, as the court of appeals’ grant of the taxpayer’s request to forgive interest on a determined deficiency and to forgive the late payment penalty exceeded its jurisdiction regardless of nonpublication, and regardless of any assumed lack of precedential effect of the ruling that was unpublished.

The court in In re Mays, 256 B.R. 555, 37 Bankr. Ct. Dec. (CRR) 30, Bankr L. Rep. (CCH) ¶78325 (Bankr. D. N.J. 2000), noting that attorneys may rely on unpublished opinions, held that such opinions are not binding, but there is an underlying presumption that they have precedential effect. The debtor sought to avoid the involuntary preferential transfer of the debtor’s wages during the 90-day period preceding the petition filing under 11 U.S.C.A. §§ 522(h) and 547(b). In response, the creditor relied on the unpublished decision in In re Gomez, No. 97-27459 (Bankr. D. N.J. Dec. 8, 1997). In Gomez, the court addressed the identical issue in this case and determined that the New Jersey statutory scheme for wage garnishment creates a continuing lien. The court noted that generally, courts treat the reliance on and the precedential value of unreported or unpublished cases somewhat differently than those cases which are published. For example, 3RD CIR. IOP 5.8 (2001) states, “[b]ecause the court historically has not regarded unreported opinions as precedents that bind the court, as such opinions do not circulate to the full court before filing, the court by tradition does not cite to its unreported opinions as authority.” While the court noted that Third Circuit Rules do not apply to it, and although this rule does not appear to bar a party’s reliance on unpublished decisions, it still left room for the court to consider these opinions in their decision-making process. The court noted that the local rules of the bankruptcy and district courts in New Jersey presently fail to address unpublished opinions, and in the absence of any local rules prohibiting otherwise, attorneys may rely on unpublished opinions. The court noted that there is at least one court that has taken a further step—that is, finding that not only may unpublished opinions be cited, but that also they are necessarily binding on other courts, as the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit decided in Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh’g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2000-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), § 3, that unpublished opinions have binding precedential effect. The court noted that in the Third Circuit it is clear that a decision by a trial court judge is not binding on other judges within the same court. Although cases decided within its district are not binding on other judges within the district, the court noted that there remains an underlying presumption that precedent should be followed, as although the unpublished opinion in Gomez is not binding on the court, stare decisis might suggest that it should be followed. The court noted, however, that the United States Supreme Court in Payne v. Tennessee, 501 U.S. 808, 111 S. Ct. 2597, 115 L. Ed. 2d 720 (1991), has stated that stare decisis is a “principle of policy, and not an inexorable command.” Thus, to the extent that an earlier unreported decision of a bankruptcy court in the Third Circuit addresses the identical issue in a case, the court held that the earlier opinion is precedent that may be persuasive but is not binding and need not be followed.

The court in McMeans v. Brigano, 228 F.3d 674, 2000 FED App. 353P (6th Cir. 2000), held that unpublished federal court of appeals cases have limited precedential force.

The Ninth Circuit in Hart v. Massanari, 266 F.3d 1155, Unempl. Ins. Rep. (CCH) ¶16685B, 105 A.L.R.5th 747 (9th Cir. 2001), held that 9th Cir. R. 36-3, providing that unpublished dispositions and orders of the Ninth Circuit are not binding precedent, is constitutional, and disagreed with the holding of Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh’g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), § 5. The appellee cited an unpublished disposition as precedent based upon the authority of Anastasoff. The court noted that Anastasoff, while vacated, continues to have persuasive force. The court noted that Anastasoff held that Eighth Circuit Rule 28A(i), which provides that unpublished dispositions are not precedential-and hence not binding on future panels of that court, violates Article III of the Constitution. According to Anastasoff, exercise of the “judicial Power” precludes federal courts from making rulings that are not binding in future cases. Or, to put it differently, federal judges are not merely required to follow the law, they are also required to make law in every case. To do otherwise, Anastasoff argued, would invite judicial tyranny by freeing courts from the doctrine of precedent. The Ninth Circuit stated that Anastasoff overstates the case. The court noted that rules that empower courts of appeals to issue nonprecedential decisions do not cut those courts free from all legal rules and precedents, but such rules have a much more limited effect of allowing panels of the courts of appeals to determine whether future panels, as well as judges of the inferior courts of the circuit, will be bound by particular rulings. The court noted that this is hardly the same as turning its back on all precedents, or on the concept of precedent altogether, but rather, it is an effort to deal with precedent in the context of a modern legal system, which has evolved considerably since the early days of common law, and even since the time the Constitution was adopted. The court noted that the only constitutional provision on which Anastasoff relies is that portion of Article III that vests the “judicial Power” of the United States in the federal courts, U.S. Const. art. III, § 1, cl. 1. The court noted that Anastasoff may be the first case in the history of the Republic to hold that the phrase “judicial Power” encompasses a specific command that limits the power of the federal courts, and it stated that the judicial power clause has never before been thought to encompass a constitutional limitation on how courts conduct their business. Unlike the Anastasoff court, the Ninth Circuit court was unable to find within Article III of the Constitution a requirement that all case dispositions and orders issued by appellate courts be binding authority. On the contrary, the court stated that an inherent aspect of its function as Article III judges is managing precedent to develop a coherent body of circuit law to govern litigation in its court and the other courts of this circuit. The court also noted that the common law has long recognized that certain types of cases do not deserve to be authorities, and that one important aspect of the judicial function is separating the cases that should be precedent from those that should not, and that without clearer guidance than that offered in Anastasoff, it saw no constitutional basis for abdicating this important aspect of its judicial responsibility. The court thus concluded that Rule 36-3 is constitutional.

The court in Barber v. Superior Court, 234 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 285 Cal. Rptr. 668 (3d Dist. 1991), held that an unpublished appellate court decision was without any precedential value or binding force, and could not be relied upon, though the decision was twice printed in the advance pamphlet for tracking purposes.

See Schmier v. Supreme Court, 78 Cal. App. 4th 703, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (1st Dist. 2000), reh’g denied, (May 24, 2000) and review denied, 2000 WL 1279314 (U.S. 2000), in which the court noted that the broad constitutional and legislative authority that grants the California Supreme Court selective publication discretion for appellate opinions manifests the policy that the state’s highest court, with its supervisory powers over lower courts, should oversee the orderly development of decisional law, giving due consideration to such factors as the expense, unfairness to many litigants, and chaos in precedent research if all California Court of Appeal opinions were published, and whether unpublished opinions would have the same precedential value as published opinions; the court thus held that the California rules of court that govern the publication of appellate opinions are consistent with the statutory scheme they were intended to represent, under which the California Supreme Court is given selective publication discretion to allow the court to oversee the orderly development of decisional law, and thus do not violate the provision of the California Constitution, Cal. Const. art. VI, § 14, giving the Judicial Council power to adopt rules for court administration, practice, and procedure.

Comment

Under Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 977, an opinion that is not certified for publication cannot subsequently be cited as legal authority or precedent, except as relevant to the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata, or collateral estoppel, or as relevant to a criminal or disciplinary action because the opinion states reasons for a decision that affects the same defendant or respondent in another action.

The court in Pannone v. City of Brisbane, 2002 WL 86908 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2002), nonpublished/nonciteable, held that the court rule forbidding giving precedential effect to unpublished opinions in civil cases unless they fall within the doctrines of law of the case, res judicata or collateral estoppel, Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 977, was not unconstitutional as violating the judicial–powers clause of the federal constitution, U.S. Const. art. 3, § 1, cl. 1. The plaintiffs urged that the court adopt the maverick view of the federal Eighth Circuit panel holding, in Anastasoff v. U.S., 223 F.3d 898, 56 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1621, 2000-2 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50705, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-5724 (8th Cir. 2000), opinion vacated as moot on reh’g en banc, 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000), § 7, that a similar rule for that circuit was unconstitutional as violating the judicial–powers clause of article III, section 1, clause 1, of the federal Constitution. The court declined to take that view. The court noted that the Eighth Circuit, sitting en banc, has since ordered Anastasoff vacated as moot (Anastasoff v. U.S., 235 F.3d 1054, 2001-1 U.S. Tax Cas. (CCH) ¶50136, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7275, 86 A.F.T.R.2d 2000-7277 (8th Cir. 2000)); a Ninth Circuit panel has vigorously debunked Anastasoff (Hart v. Massanari, 266 F.3d 1155, Unempl. Ins. Rep. (CCH) ¶16685B, 105 A.L.R.5th 747 (9th Cir. 2001), § 4); and the California Supreme Court has not yet addressed Anastasoff, but has consistently adhered to the nonprecedent rule of this state.
Comment

The court in Pannone v. City of Brisbane, 2002 WL 86908 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2002), nonpublished/nonciteable, noted that a newly created website for the temporary posting of unpublished California Court of Appeal opinions (www.courtfinfo.ca.gov/opinions/nonpub.htm) begins, consistently, as follows: “Unpublished opinions of the California Courts of Appeal are posted here for 60 days solely as public information about actions taken by the Courts of Appeal.”

Caution

Rule 977(a), California Rules of Court, prohibits courts and parties from citing or relying on any unpublished opinion in any action or proceeding, except in limited circumstances specified by Rule 977(b). Availability of unpublished opinions on this Web site does not constitute publication under California Rules of Court, Rules 976, 976.1, 977, or 978 … “and that a similar caution about Rule 977 appears near the top of each posted opinion.”

The court in Skidmore v. Gateway Western Ry. Co., 333 Ill. App. 3d 947, 267 Ill. Dec. 196, 776 N.E.2d 333 (5th Dist. 2002), held that supervisory orders of the Illinois Supreme Court are not precedential, because they are unpublished, recite no facts, and provide no rationale upon which the principles of stare decisis may attach.

The court in Allstate Ins. Co. v. Dana Corp., 737 N.E.2d 1177 (Ind. Ct. App. 2000), transfer granted, opinion vacated, IN RAP 58(A), (May 4, 2001) and aff’d in part, vacated in part on other grounds, 759 N.E.2d 1049 (Ind. 2001), held that unpublished judicial decisions have minimal persuasive authority.

The court in Dynamic Air, Inc. v. Bloch, 502 N.W.2d 796, 8 I.E.R. Cas. (BNA) 1051 (Minn. Ct. App. 1993), held that, at best, unpublished opinions can be of persuasive value; for example, a party may cite an unpublished opinion affirming a trial court’s exercise of discretion to persuade a trial court to exercise discretion in the same manner. The court held that it is, however, improper to rely on unpublished opinions as binding precedent. The court also noted that the use of such opinions has the potential to result in profound unfairness. Attorneys who have access to computerized research systems are able to find unpublished opinions with facts apparently similar to their case. Attorneys who cannot afford these services are at a disadvantage, as they are unable to find those unpublished opinions supporting their cases. Because the full fact situation is seldom set out in unpublished opinions, the danger of miscitation is great. Since the Minnesota Legislature has unequivocally provided that unpublished opinions are not precedential, Minn. Stat. § 480A.08 (3)(c) (1992), the court reminded the bench and bar firmly that neither the trial courts nor practitioners are to rely on unpublished opinions as binding precedent.

Cases:

If an unpublished opinion addresses a “material issue” on appeal that is not been addressed in any published opinions, then the court will consider the opinion persuasive, but not precedential. Hoilett v. Allen, 365 F. Supp. 2d 110 (D. Mass. 2005).

District court should treat holdings of unpublished opinions of Court of Appeals with great care and respect, even though Court of Appeals itself does not accord those opinions precedential weight. Coggon v. Barnhart, 354 F. Supp. 2d 40 (D.

Court of Appeals is not bound by a district court decision affirmed by unpublished summary order. Norex Petroleum Ltd. v. Access Industries, Inc., 416 F.3d 146 (2d Cir. 2005).

Unpublished memorandum decision, while not binding legal authority, may be persuasive, particularly where there are no existing published decisions which provide as much guidance. In re O’Brien, 299 B.R. 725 (Bankr. S.D. N.Y. 2003).

An unpublished opinion does not have any precedential weight. In re Naranjo, 768 F.3d 332 (4th Cir. 2014).

As a general matter, unpublished opinions should not be relied upon, but like any other writing on a point of law, an unpublished opinion was entitled to the weight it generated by the persuasiveness of its reasoning. U.S. v. Fentress, 241 F. Supp. 2d 526 (D. Md. 2003).

Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals panel decision that was vacated had no precedential value. Lopez v. U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, 455 Fed. Appx. 427 (5th Cir. 2011).

Unpublished opinion issued pursuant to Fifth Circuit rule after January 1, 1996 had no precedential value. U.S.Ct. of App. 5th Cir.Rule 47. 28 U.S.C.A. Cavalier ex rel. Cavalier v. Caddo Parish School Bd., 403 F.3d 246 (5th Cir. 2005), as amended on denial of reh’g and reh’g en banc, (Mar. 29, 2005).

Unpublished Court of Appeals opinion was not precedent that was basis for overturning published Court of Appeals decision which held that prohibiting a felon from possessing “any other dangerous weapon” during supervised release was a standard condition. U.S.Ct. of App. 5th Cir.Rule 47.5.4, 28 U.S.C.A. U.S. v. Santillana, 109 Fed. Appx. 665 (5th Cir. 2004).

Unpublished Court of Appeals opinion was not controlling law with respect to an issue before the bankruptcy court. In re Ruth, 505 B.R. 804 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2014).

An unpublished decision is not precedentially binding under the doctrine of stare decisis, but is considered for its persuasive value only. U.S. v. Sanford, 476 F.3d 391, 2007 FED App. 0055P (6th Cir. 2007).

Unpublished decisions of the Sixth Circuit are not binding under the doctrine of stare decisis and are considered for their persuasive value only. C.A. ex rel. G.A. v. Morgan County Board of Educ., 577 F. Supp. 2d 886 (E.D. Ky. 2008).

When there is a conflict between two published decisions of the Court of Appeals that were both issued after November 1, 1990, Michigan courts must follow the first opinion that addressed the matter at issue; by contrast, Michigan Court of Appeals panels are not bound by unpublished decisions of that same court, regardless of when they were issued. MCR 7.215(J)(1). Harshaw v. Bethany Christian Services, 714 F. Supp. 2d 751 (W.D. Mich. 2010).

Unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals are not binding authority, but can be persuasive. Hall v. ITT Automotive, 362 F. Supp. 2d 952 (N.D. Ohio 2005).

Although unpublished decisions of the Sixth Circuit do not constitute binding precedent, they may constitute persuasive authority, especially where there are no published decisions which will serve as well. In re Storey, 392 B.R. 266 (B.A.P. 6th Cir. 2008).

Generally, unpublished authority is without precedential value, except for purpose of establishing res judicata, estoppel or the law of the case. In re Diguilio, 303 B.R. 144 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 2003).

Pursuant to Iowa Rule of Appellate Procedure providing that unpublished opinions or decisions were not controlling legal authority, and Eighth Circuit rule providing that unpublished opinions were not precedent, unpublished decisions of Iowa state courts were not binding in Eighth Circuit. U.S.Ct. of App. 8th Cir.Rule 32.1A, 28 U.S.C.A. ; I.C.A. Rule 6.904(2)(c). Brunk v. Graybar Elec. Co., Inc., 713 F. Supp. 2d 814 (S.D. Iowa 2010).

Unpublished opinions from the Third Circuit are not binding on that court but may be cited as persuasive authority. U.S. v. Gonzalez, 739 F.3d 420 (9th Cir. 2013).

An unpublished decision is not precedent for a panel of the Court of Appeals. Pedroza v. BRB, 624 F.3d 926 (9th Cir. 2010).

District court’s refusal to reconsider its grant of summary judgment to trademark infringement defendant following appellate reversal of case it had relied upon was not abuse of discretion; court’s reasoning and legal conclusions had been supported by other case law, and unpublished appellate case was not binding precedent. Precedential Effect of Unpublished Opinions, 105 A.L.R.5th 499 (Originally published...)

District court should not have relied on an unpublished decision in determining motion. U.S. v. Daychild, 357 F.3d 1082 (9th Cir. 2004).

See Schmier v. U.S. Court of Appeals for Ninth Circuit, 279 F 817 (9th Cir. 2002), in which the court held that an attorney alleging that circuit rules prohibiting citation to unpublished opinions violated his rights under Article III, the First Amendment, the Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses, and the separation-of-powers doctrine, failed to allege a legally cognizable injury, as required by the standing doctrine, where the attorney appeared to allege an injury on behalf of all lawyers practicing within the Ninth Circuit, and not that he personally had suffered sanctions or harm from the inability to rely on an unpublished opinion in a live litigation, nor could he establish standing based solely on his interest in seeing the federal courts “perform [their] duties.”

Although district court is not bound by unpublished decisions of intermediate state courts, unpublished opinions that are supported by reasoned analysis may be treated as persuasive authority. Aboulhosn v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc., 940 F. Supp. 2d 1203 (C.D. Cal. 2013).

Habeas court may consider an unpublished opinion in determining whether the state consistently applies a procedural rule so as to render the petitioner sufficiently “apprised” of the rule’s meaning. Bennett v. Mueller, 364 F. Supp. 2d 1160 (C.D. Cal. 2005).

The court in Ileto v. Glock, Inc., 194 F. Supp. 2d 1040 (C.D. Cal. 2002), held that a district court cannot rely on a summary conclusion in an unpublished opinion as precedent because it does not know what allegations were asserted in the plaintiffs’ complaint, what arguments were made by the parties in their briefing, and what analysis was undertaken by the court.

Ninth Circuit rule governing citation of unpublished dispositions or orders did not bar district court from considering unpublished decisions of other federal district courts; however, such decisions were not binding, and at most were persuasive authority. U.S. Ct. of App. 9th Cir. Rule 36–3, 28 U.S.C.A. Herring v. Teradyne, Inc., 256 F. Supp. 2d 1118 (S.D. Cal. 2002).

Unpublished decision of Court of Appeals was not precedent and thus could not be relied upon by district court. McHenry v. PacificSource Health Plans, 643 F. Supp. 2d 1236, 46 Employee Benefits Cas. (BNA) 2472 (D. Or. 2009).

Unpublished opinion within circuit, though not binding precedent, was entitled to persuasive authority on same basis as opinion from another circuit because of its reasoned analysis. U.S. v. Lyons, 510 F.3d 1225 (10th Cir. 2007).

Unpublished decisions are not binding authority. Gamble v. Calbone, 375 F.3d 1021 (10th Cir. 2004).

In disability insurance benefits (DIB) and supplemental security income (SSI) case, ALJ’s decision rejecting judge’s holding, in remand order, that discrepancy existed between claimant’s mental residual functional capacity (RFC) and level three reasoning requirement specified in Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT) was not based on substantial evidence or correct legal standards; ALJ provided no relevant case law or other authority supporting his conclusions, instead relying on unpublished case that had no precedential value and could not be followed to extent it disagreed with published Tenth Circuit case. Social Security Act, § 205(g), 42 U.S.C.A. § 405(g). Duran v. Astrue, 654 F. Supp. 2d 1298 (D. Colo. 2009).

Unpublished opinions are not controlling authority and are persuasive only insofar as their legal analysis warrants. Bonilla v. Baker Concrete Const., Inc., 487 F.3d 1340, 12 Wage & Hour Cas. 2d (BNA) 1100 (11th Cir. 2007).

Reliance on unpublished opinions is not favored; although litigants may cite unpublished opinions to the Eleventh Circuit as persuasive authority provided that a copy of the opinion is attached to a brief, they are not considered binding precedent. U.S.Ct. of App. 11th Cir.Rule 36.2, 28 U.S.C.A. Association for Disabled Americans, Inc. v. Integra Resort Management,
An unpublished decision is not controlling authority and is persuasive only insofar as its legal analysis warrants. Penzer v. Transportation Ins. Co., 509 F. Supp. 2d 1278 (S.D. Fla. 2007).

Unpublished opinions will not be considered as authority and should not be cited to the Supreme Court. Thomas v. State, 367 Ark. 478, 241 S.W.3d 247 (2006).

Application of rule prohibiting citation to unpublished court of appeals’ opinions did not violate defendant’s right to due process of law by depriving him of access to available law to support his arguments on appeal that evidence was insufficient to sustain his drug convictions; there were ample published opinions setting forth test for sufficiency of the evidence, as well as its application, and, even if defendant were allowed to cite to unpublished opinions, there was no requirement that the Supreme Court agree with his assessment that a particular case constituted persuasive authority. U.S. Const. Amend. XIV; Sup. Ct. Rules, Rule 5–2(d). Weatherford v. State, 101 S.W.3d 227 (Ark. 2003).

Court of Appeal’s unpublished action in dismissing an appeal because the appellant was not an aggrieved party was not citable authority. Earl v. State Personnel Board, 2014 WL 5866894 (Cal. App. 3d Dist. 2014).

Unpublished opinion was not citable as precedent, where the opinion was not within the narrow set of circumstances in which the California Rules of Court authorized reference to unpublished opinions. Cal. R. Ct. 8.1115(b) Humane Society of the United States v. Superior Court of Yolo County, 214 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 2013 WL 1233270 (3d Dist. 2013).

The Court of Appeal would not consider an unpublished memorandum and order issued by a federal district court, in determining whether wage statements which listed the total number of regular hours and the total number of overtime hours worked by the employee satisfied the Labor Code requirement to show the “total hours worked,” where the order was not published in the Federal Supplement nor was it available through Lexis or Westlaw. West’s Ann.Cal.Labor Code § 226(a)(2). Morgan v. United Retail Inc., 186 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 16 Wage & Hour Cas. 2d (BNA) 637, 2010 WL 2510125 (2d Dist. 2010).

Although the Court of Appeal may not rely on unpublished California cases, the California Rules of Court do not prohibit citation to unpublished federal cases, which may properly be cited as persuasive, although not binding, authority. Cal.Rules

Defense counsel’s citation of one nonpublished opinion and one depublished opinion, in arguing that defendant should not be subjected to mandatory sex offender registration, was not justified by collateral estoppel, and thus the citations violated rule of court generally prohibiting citation of unpublished opinions. Cal.Rules of Court, Rule 8.1115. People v. Manchel, 163 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194 (2d Dist. 2008).

While a party may cite unpublished federal opinions if they are available by computer, such authority is not binding or precedential. Ticconi v. Blue Shield of California Life & Health Ins. Co., 153 Cal. App. 4th 1123, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 698 (2d Dist. 2007).

Although unpublished opinion may not be cited or relied upon, an unpublished opinion can be considered for the value and persuasiveness of its analysis or reasoning. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 977(a). Modern Development Co. v. Navigators Ins. Co., 111 Cal. App. 4th 932, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528 (2d Dist. 2003), as modified, (Aug. 29, 2003) and as modified, (Sept. 18, 2003).

Per curiam appellate affirmance without written opinion has no precedential value. TRW Automotive U.S. LLC v. Papandopoles, 949 So. 2d 297 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 4th Dist. 2007).

Per curiam affirmation without written opinion, even one with a written dissent, has no precedential value and should not be relied on for anything other than res judicata. St. Fort ex rel. St. Fort v. Post, Buckley, Schuh & Jernigan, 902 So. 2d 244 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 4th Dist. 2005).

Landlords and trial court, in lead poisoning case brought against landlords by guardian of estate of two minor children, violated Supreme Court Rule providing that an unpublished order of an Illinois appellate court could not be cited by any party except to support contentions of double jeopardy, res judicata, collateral estoppel or law of the case; landlords submitted unpublished order in hearing on their summary judgment motion for the stated purpose of showing the standard by which courts were allegedly judging liability on lead-based contamination cases, and, when guardian objected, trial court responded that considering the unpublished order was no different that considering treatise that guardian had submitted to the trial court. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 23. Price ex rel. Massey v. Hickory Point Bank & Trust, Trust No. 0192, 299 Ill. Dec. 352, 841 N.E.2d 1084 (App. Ct. 4th Dist. 2006).

The fact one court has used certain reasoning in an unpublished opinion does not bar courts in Illinois from using the same reasoning in their decisions; while parties are restricted from citing unpublished orders of Illinois Appellate Courts, that does not bar the parties from using the reasoning and logic that an Illinois Appellate Court used in its unpublished decision, but rather it bars parties from citing that unpublished decision as authority. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 23(e). Osman v. Ford Motor Co., 295 Ill. Dec. 805, 833 N.E.2d 1011 (App. Ct. 4th Dist. 2005).

It is error for a trial court to rely on an unpublished order of an appellate court other than in those cases involving double

Portion of husband’s reply brief in appeal of judgment of dissolution that cited an unpublished order had to be struck, where the order was not cited to support contentions of double jeopardy, res judicata, collateral estoppel, or law of the case. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 23(e). In re Marriage of Schmitt, 909 N.E.2d 221 (Ill. App. Ct. 2d Dist. 2009).

It was improper for defense counsel to cite, and for the trial court to consider, an unpublished order as precedential authority since rule stated that an unpublished order of the court was not precedential and could not be cited by any party except to support contentions of double jeopardy, res judicata, collateral estoppel or law of the case. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 23(e). People v. Matous, 886 N.E.2d 1278 (Ill. App. Ct. 3d Dist. 2008).

Unpublished Court of Appeals decisions do not constitute controlling legal authority for the Supreme Court. State v. Murray, 796 N.W.2d 907 (Iowa 2011).

Supreme Court is not bound by the opinions of the Court of Appeals, particularly by unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals. Ky. R. Civ. P. 76.28(4)(c). Beaumont v. Zeru, 460 S.W.3d 904 (Ky. 2015).

Appellant’s citation to non-final unpublished Court of Appeals opinion that was not final, in that Supreme Court had accepted discretionary review, was improper, as while rule permitted citation of certain unpublished appellate opinions, the rule did not extend to opinions that were not final, in that there could be no precedential value to a holding that was still being considered. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 76.28(4)(c). State Farm Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 339 S.W.3d 456 (Ky. 2011).

Neither unpublished opinions of the Court of Appeals, nor decisions from foreign jurisdictions, are binding precedent. Minneapolis Grand, LLC v. Galt Funding LLC, 791 N.W.2d 549 (Minn. Ct. App. 2010).

Unpublished opinions of Court of Appeals are not precedential, and at best may be of persuasive value. M.S.A. § 480A.08, 3(c). State v. Timberlake, 726 N.W.2d 175 (Minn. Ct. App. 2007).

Unpublished opinions are of limited value in deciding an appeal. M.S.A. § 480A.08, subd 3(c). Dyrdal v. Golden Nuggets, Trial courts are not free to decide issues according to authority found in unpublished trial court opinions. In re Guardianship of Duckett, 991 So. 2d 1165 (Miss. 2008).

Law of case doctrine did not apply in proceeding by ex–wife requesting chancellor to enforce Court of Appeals’ prior judgment finding that ex–wife, who resumed living with ex–husband following divorce, was entitled to payment for her domestic services, where prior opinion of Court of Appeals was unpublished, and thus, prior opinion was not public policy and whether trial court followed such prior opinion would not affect other subsequent parties or negate trial court’s ability to set precedent. Wooldridge v. Wooldridge, 856 So. 2d 446 (Miss. Ct. App. 2003), cert. granted, (Sept. 5, 2003).

Unpublished opinions are neither binding nor persuasive precedent in the Court of Appeals. Executive Bd. of Missouri Baptist Convention v. Windermere Baptist Conference Center, 280 S.W.3d 678 (Mo. Ct. App. W.D. 2009), reh’g and/or transfer denied, (Mar. 31, 2009) and transfer denied, (May 5, 2009).

Memorandum opinions are unpublished and may not be relied on as authority. Weer v. State, 2010 MT 232, 358 Mont. 130, 244 P.3d 311 (2010).

Unpublished decision in which one trial court dismissed palimony action on ground that cohabitation was an essential element of the claim was not “legal authority in the controlling jurisdiction” that attorney who represented plaintiff in that action was required under professional conduct rule to call to the attention of trial and appellate courts in another palimony action in which same attorney represented a plaintiff who had not cohabited with individual against whose estate she asserted claim, and in which trial court denied estate’s motion to dismiss and appellate court denied estate’s motion for leave to appeal. RPC 3.3(a)(3). Brundage v. Estate of Carambio, 951 A.2d 947 (N.J. 2008).

Unpublished decisions are not meant to be used as precedent; they are written solely for the benefit of the parties. Romero v. City of Santa Fe, 139 N.M. 440, 2006-NMCA-055, 134 P.3d 131 (Ct. App. 2006).

Court of Appeals is not bound by a prior unpublished decision of another panel of the Court of Appeals. State v. Pritchard, 649 S.E.2d 917 (N.C. Ct. App. 2007).

Oklahoma judicial decisions that are not published in the permanent law reports have neither persuasive nor precedential value in Oklahoma, and the Oklahoma Supreme Court is not inclined to treat unpublished decisions from other jurisdictions differently. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 1.200, 12 O.S.A. Ch. 15, App. 1.

Under Tennessee law, while unpublished appellate decisions are binding only on parties, courts’ reasoning in unpublished appellate decisions may be highly persuasive. In re Del-Met Corp., 322 B.R. 781 (Bankr. M.D. Tenn. 2005) (applying Tennessee law).

While unpublished opinions are not controlling authority except between the parties to the case, they are persuasive authority. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 4(H)(1). In re D.Y.H., 226 S.W.3d 131 (Tenn. 2007).

Although an unpublished case has no precedential value, Court of Appeals may take guidance from it as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Wilson v. State, 391 S.W.3d 131 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2012).

Although unpublished cases have no precedential value, the Court of Appeals may take guidance from them as an aid in developing reasoning that may be employed. Barnett v. State, 344 S.W.3d 6 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2011).

While unpublished, or memorandum, opinions are not binding precedent, such opinions may be considered as persuasive authority. Texas Vital Care v. State, 323 S.W.3d 609 (Tex. App. Texarkana 2010).

Effect of rule of appellate procedure which provides for citation to unpublished opinions even if they are of no precedential value, is to afford parties more flexibility in pointing out such opinions and reasoning employed in them, rather then simply arguing, without reference, that same reasoning. Rules App. Proc., Rule 47.7. State v. Mechler, 123 S.W.3d 449 (Tex. App. Houston 14th Dist. 2003), reh’g overruled, (Nov. 25, 2003) and petition for discretionary review filed, (Jan. 14, 2004).

Under rule of appellate procedure providing that unpublished opinions may be cited, but have no precedential value, court to whom unpublished opinion is cited has no obligation to follow opinion or to specifically distinguish such opinion. Rules App. Proc., Rule 47.7. Carrillo v. State, 98 S.W.3d 789 (Tex. App. Amarillo 2003), petition for discretionary review filed, (Apr. 7, 2003).

Comment

By analyzing and effectively overruling unpublished case when it determined that unpublished case relied upon by trial was wrongly decided, Court of Appeals impermissibly gave persuasive effect to unpublished case that had no precedential or persuasive authority. W.S.A. 809.23. City of Sheboygan v. Nysch, 2008 WI 64, 750 N.W.2d 475 (Wis. 2008).

Citation of unpublished opinions may be subject to sanction. W.S.A. 809.23(3). Roy v. St. Lukes Medical Center, 2007 WI App 218, 741 N.W.2d 256 (Wis. Ct. App. 2007).
A party may not cite to an unpublished opinion as precedent or authority. W.S.A. 809.23(3). Morrison v. Rankin, 2007 WI App 186, 738 N.W.2d 588 (Wis. Ct. App. 2007).

Footnotes

8. The continuing validity of the statement in Harris v. U.S., 769 F.2d 718 (11th Cir. 1985), that unpublished opinions are binding precedent is doubtful in light of the statement in U.S. v. Futrell, 209 F.3d 1286 (11th Cir. 2000), ¶4, that under 11th Cir. R. 36–2 unpublished opinions are not binding on the court.

9. The Rule provides: “Unpublished opinions are not precedent and parties generally should not cite them. When relevant to establishing the doctrines of res judicata, collateral estoppel, or the law of the case, however, the parties may cite any unpublished opinion. Parties may also cite an unpublished opinion of this court if the opinion has persuasive value on a material issue and no published opinion of this or another court would serve as well.”

10. See Macktal v. U.S. Dept. of Labor, 171 F.3d 323, 14 I.E.R. Cas. (BNA) 1825 (5th Cir. 1999), ¶3, in which the court noted that unpublished opinions issued in the Fifth Circuit before January 1, 1996, are binding precedent in the Fifth Circuit under Fifth Cir. R. 47.5.3.
